Join the U.S. National Science Foundation in a campaign to amplify community stories.

Science Happens Here calls on our researchers, engineers, innovators, teachers, entrepreneurs, staff and others to share about the research, discoveries, technologies, facilities, partnerships and opportunities that NSF makes possible in your state, region and community.

With customizable social media tools that enable our diverse and talented community to share your unique story, let’s come together to highlight the incredible impact NSF has in communities across the country and around the globe.
