Who We Are

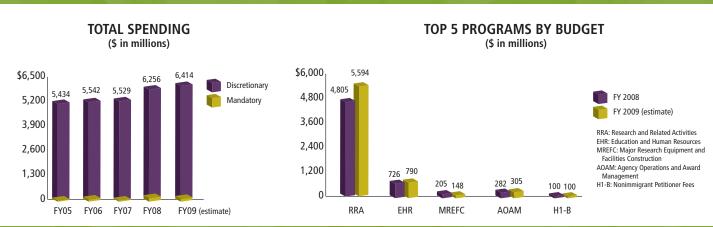

Mission. The National Science Foundation (NSF) Act of 1950 (Public Law 81-507) sets forth NSF's mission: To promote the progress of science; to advance the national health, prosperity, and welfare; to secure the national defense. To carry out this mission, NSF supports basic research and education across all fields of science and engineering and at all levels of education. See NSF's Strategic Plan at www.nsf.gov/publications/pub summ.jsp?ods key=nsf0648.

Organization. NSF's organization reflects the major fields of science and engineering. These include biological sciences, computer and information science and engineering, engineering, geosciences, mathematics and physical sciences, and social, behavioral, and economic sciences. NSF also carries out specific responsibilities for education and human resources, cyberinfrastructure, international science and engineering, and polar programs. The 24-member National Science Board establishes the overall policies of the Foundation. NSF's organization chart can be found at www.nsf.gov/staff/orgchart.jsp.

Personnel. The NSF workforce includes over 1,300 full-time staff as well as about 150 temporary appointees under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act. For information about employment opportunities, see www.usajobs.opm.gov.

Budgetary Resources. FY 2008 appropriations totaled $6,127.5 million or $20 per capita.

Performance Snapshot

Accomplishments. In FY 2008, the NSF received over 44,400 grant proposals and made 11,162 new awards, mostly to individual investigators or small groups of investigators at nearly 1,900 colleges, universities, and other public and private institutions throughout the United States. Ninety percent of NSF's funding was allocated through a merit-based review process that is recognized throughout government as the exemplar for effective and efficient use of public funds, with 248,000 proposal reviews conducted. Results reported by NSF-supported investigators can be found at www.nsf.gov/discoveries.

Challenges. NSF is pursuing changes in a number of areas in order to stay focused on the frontiers of science and engineering: (1) Establishing new funding mechanisms and providing additional guidance for the merit review process to enhance its ability to identify and support research that is potentially transformative. (2) Investing in technology to support program oversight and management. For example, the recently launched Research.gov portal provides a menu of grants management services tailored to the needs of the research community. (3) Addressing increased proposal pressure. The competition for NSF funds has always been intense and has grown more so in recent years. To address this challenge, NSF is pursuing a variety of approaches that balance trade-offs between keeping the proposal workload at a productive and manageable level—for both NSF and the applicant community—and encouraging the free flow of ideas to NSF.

Financial Snapshot

Clean Opinion on Financial Statements	Yes
Timely Financial Reporting	Yes
Material Weaknesses	0
Improper Payment Rate	Not applicable*
Total Assets (in millions)	$9,055
Total Liabilities (in millions)	$555
Net Cost of Operations (in millions)	$5,944

*NSF has moved to a 3-year reporting cycle for improper payments because of its low improper payments and the establishment of a robust post-award monitoring program. In FY 2005, NSF's improper payments rate was 0.093 percent.
